Air Transport in East Arkansas

Paragould Is Smaller Than Hope

The commercial use of airports in cities no larger than Hope is nearer than you think. Today's front page tells us that a Tennessee company is applying for a permit to establish an air-mail "pickup" line in eastern Arkansas, serving Helena, Jonesboro and Paragould, two cities being not much larger than Hope, and Paragould being smaller.

Will Grant No New Limit on British Aid

'No More Concessions' Is Policy of Democratic Leadership

WASHINGTON —(AP)—A policy of "no more concessions" on the administration's aid-to-Britain bill was agreed on Friday by the house Democratic leadership shortly before the fight over amendments to the measure was resumed on the house floor.

After a conference with Democratic members of the foreign affairs committee, Speaker Rayburn told newsmen the group had decided to "fight" a series of Republican proposals to restrict the scope of the legislation and further curb the powers it would confer on the president to lend or lease supplies and equipment to nations "resisting aggression."

Rayburn said specifically it had been decided to oppose an amendment advanced by Rep. Eaton, R., N. J., to limit the aid to Britain to $2 billion dollars in credits.

Both Rayburn and chairman Bloom, D., N. Y., indicated they had decided against making any effort to remove from the bill an amendment by Rep. Dirksen, R., Ill., which, adopted Thursday by a narrow margin, would give congress the power to terminate the lend-lease program at any time.

Japs Strike at Supply Line

Invaders Reported Near Hongkong-Chungking Line

HONGKONG, China —(AP)—Japanese troops striving to cut the Hongkong-Chungking supply route were reported within 10 miles of Watchow Friday as streams of refugees fled from the threatened city 65 miles north of this port.

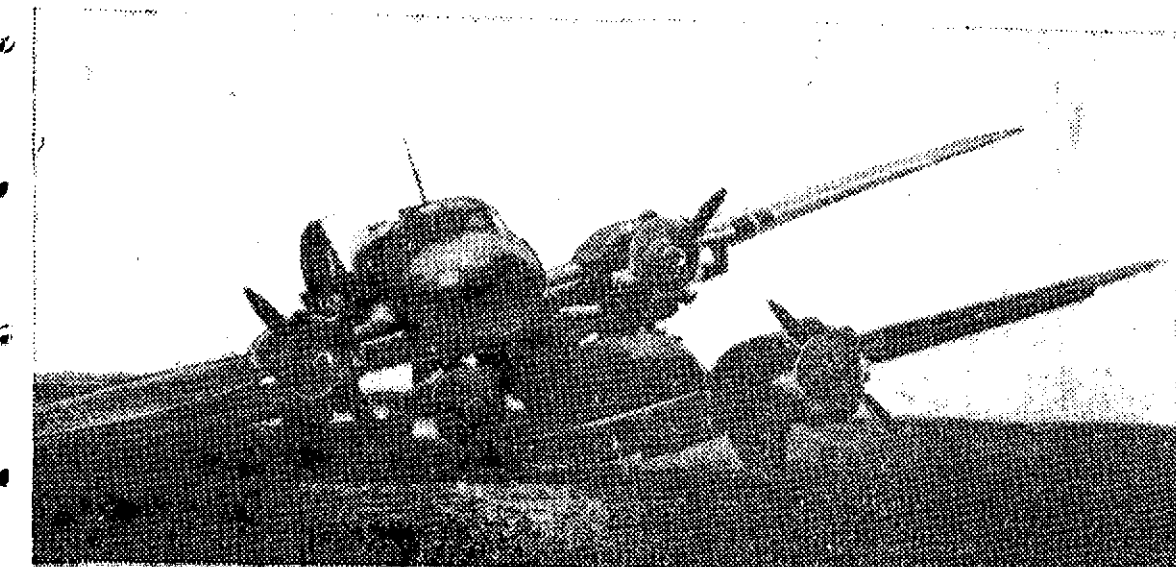

Heavy fighting was reported, with the Chinese hurrying reinforcements from the north in an attempt to halt the Jap drive.

Jap bombing planes were said to have strafed the Chinese forces throughout the night with the aid of parachute flares.

Reports from Shau-chung, coastal township 13 miles from Hongkong, said scores of Chinese had drowned while trying to flee in overcrowded sampans before the entry of Jap troops two days ago.

The U. S. army's most seasoned pilots are being given special training at Wright Field in high-altitude flying.

Mid-Air Crash---and Then a Miracle

It couldn't happen—but it did! Two training planes of the Canadian Royal Air Force crashed in mid-air, interlocked and then were landed safely with no casualties. The planes were not damaged seriously and soon will be used again as trainers at the MacLeod, Alberta, training school.

Program Plans for National Scout Week

Local Scout to Hold Special Church Services Sunday

Highlighted by the Nation-wide Presidential Broadcast on Scout Anniversary Day, February 8, at which time the more than a million members of the Boy Scouts of America will rededicate themselves to the Scout Oath, Boy Scout Week will be celebrated from February 7 to February 13, inclusive.

Hope Scouts will observe Scout Week with special services in the churches sponsoring scout troops, on Sunday, February 9, at 11:00 a. m., and a Court of Honor at Oglesby school, Monday, at 9:00 a. m., where thirty-five Merit Badges, four Second Class Certificates, three First Class Certificates, one Star, two Life, and one Eagle Palms Certificate will be awarded.

The center window at Chas. A. Haynes Company has been given to the Boy Scouts and a special exhibit will be on display there. Wingfield Stroud will have charge of decorating the window.

On February 8, at 6:30 p. m., Central Standard Time, President Roosevelt will join President Walter W. Head of the Boy Scouts of America and Dr. James E. West, Chief Scout Executive, in a special broadcast over the combined networks of the National Broadcasting Company, the Columbia Broadcasting Company, and the Mutual Broadcasting System as well as many independent stations.

Announcement was first made that the special Sunday service would be at the Christian church, but this arrangement has been changed, and all scouts are urged to attend services at the church sponsoring the troop and to come wearing full scout uniform, or as much as possible.

The Court of Honor at Oglesby School Monday morning will be presided over by Rev. J. E. Hamill, pastor of the Tabernacle Congregation. He will be assisted by E. F. McFadden, who will award First Class Certificates; Albert Graves—Second Class Certificates; R. P. Bowen—Merit Badges; and George Ware—Star, Life and Eagle Palms Certificates. Burr Blodgett will award the only Eagle Star Badge.

Mothers and fathers of the boys receiving Merit Badges or Certificates are urged to attend the Court of Honor at the Oglesby School, Monday morning. It will not only be an interesting program for them, but their attendance will do much to promote a better scouting program in Hope.

Weisenberger Urges Big Vote

Vital That Hempstead Turn Out for Refunding

Editor The Star: Wednesday a committee of our citizens attended a meeting with Sen. Pilkinton, Mr. Field and myself, which I had the pleasure of arranging at the request of the Chamber of Commerce. This concerned the proposed National Guard Armory for Hope.

At that meeting the matter of the necessity of our citizens voting overwhelmingly in favor of Governor Adkins' Refunding program was also discussed and the members of the Citizens Committee assured your legislators that such would be the case.

I can not urge too strongly the absolute necessity of all our voters turning out on February 15 and voting for the refunding act (No. 4 of 1941) and in favor of the Refunding Board issuing bonds to refund the present highway bonds. Too often on what seems to be uncontroverted matters there is a tendency to stay home from the election. In this case I want to urge all our citizens to manifest by their vote their interest in this matter and to show our great governor our confidence in this proposed program.

I might add that we hope thus to make certain the awarding of some contracts to pave some of our highways, and that we have a great number of road district bonds on many of our farms and city homes that will be raised by refunding.

Let every citizen do his sacred duty on February 15 and cast his ballot in the interest of his county and state.

Respectfully submitted,
ROYCE WEISENBERGER

Welfare Bills Given Senate

Merit System Provided for State Welfare Dept.

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)—The Administration dropped six bills, three which affect the welfare department, into the senate hopper Friday as the upper house met just before the week-end recess.

The major administration bill introduced was a measure by Taylor of Clarksville under which a merit system set up in the welfare department last year would be instructed by the social security board.

Other administration bills introduced would:

1. Increase the duties of geologists, including corporations and industries engaged in the utilization of minerals. This bill was sponsored by Baker of Newport and Pilkinton of Hope.
2. Make it unlawful to assess any state employee for political purposes and to prohibit any state employee from being members of any political party or organization which plans to overthrow the government. Sponsored by Sheppard of Russellville.

The last of a series of seven administration school bills introduced in the house, measures by Shaw of Poinsett, and Gibson of Carroll, would extend a provision of the 1937 teachers' retirement act to 1,000, and to include pensions for clerical and administrative employees of local school boards, officers of the state department, and educators for the blind and deaf.

A committee acted on a bill by Rep. Barham of Sebastian, for the removal of the $1 penalty for delinquent poll tax, and the senate sent to the governor, approved by a voice vote, a resolution by Mason, of Camden, calling for the construction of a flood control dam on the Ouchita river.

The house passed 57-0 a bill by Spencer of Craighead, regulating the practice of plumbing in cities over 10,000 y commission.

The house disposed of a batch of non-controversial senate bills and sent them to the governor.

One by Bratton of Paragould, would provide for appointment of a five-man board to administer the Paragould Power & Light Plant.

Last Italian Base in East Libya Seized

British Deploy About Fort and Strike From Two Directions

CAIRO —(AP)—Bengasi, Italy's last big stronghold in eastern Libya, has been captured, British general headquarters announced Friday.

The British now claim control of all eastern Libya, with Italian forces there capitulating or fleeing.

Bengasi, military and naval base and a provincial capital of a territory which Italy regards as a part of herself, was taken Thursday by British forces which cut through a blinding sandstorm to strike at the city from two directions.

After skirting the Jebel el Akdar range on the inland side to Bengasi's east, British armored forces including swift Bren gun carriers, armored cars and tanks, knifed across the main coastal highway south of Bengasi, and straddled that road while Australian assault troops lunged against the city's defenses on the northeast.

The first communique on the victory said merely "Bengasi is in our hands."

A later communique gave the plan of attack. This communique, reporting on other African war fronts, said in part that more than 3,500 prisoners had been taken on the British advance into Eritrea, Italian East Africa. The communique said:

"At the same time, Australian troops advancing from Derna gave the retreating enemy forces no respite. Demoralized and outmaneuvered, the enemy were unable to put into effect their plans for defense of Bengasi."

It was reported that the lightning encirclement of Bengasi was carried out in a swirling sandstorm.

VICHY —(AP)—Gen. Maxime Weygand has denied in the name of the French government that France is intending to let Germany use the naval base at Bizerte, French Tunisia, and has declared that no negotiations are underway for cession of Bizerte or the landing of German troops there for Libya.

Would Prevent 'Assessments'

Bill to Kill Employee Shakedown, on Adkins' Program

LITTLE ROCK —(AP)—An administration bill to prohibit assessments against state employees for political purposes will be introduced in the legislature in the next few days, Governor Adkins said Thursday. Departmental officials who violated the proposed law could be removed from office.

The bill would make it unlawful for a state employee to belong to a political party or organization advancing the "overthrow of our constitutional form of government."

Other administration measures which have been drafted would:

Create accounts for the crippled children, dependent children, aid to the blind and old age assistance federal aid funds in the state treasury, instead of keeping the accounts in banks as at present.

Increase the state Racing Commission members. There would be two members at large and one from each congressional district.

Increase the state welfare commissioner's annual salary from $4,000 to $5,000.

Terminate the six-year-old Centennial Commission.

Most major administration bills regarded as "controversial" before the session opened have been presented.

zanne, frightened, sent for the doctor.

Martha never knew what Suzanne told him. Her teeth were chattering, her head was swimming, but she kept moaning, "Doctor, I'm all right. If they'd only let me up! I've got to do something.
I've got to find him!"

"You've got to get quiet, Madam!" The doctor swabbed a spot on her arm, jabbed in the needle, and said, "Now go to sleep!"

"I can't, I can't."
But in a little while, she felt the drug taking hold. Dissolving something in her brain which wanted to hold on. Something which fought, and was losing slowly. . . .

IT was morning when she awoke.
Late morning. And Suzanne's face told her at once that Bill was still missing. "Paul's on his way over. We're driving to camp, to look around the town close by. The detective thinks maybe he went back and didn't have the nerve to report. Sometimes they do that."

Not Bill, Martha thought bleak-
ly. If he went back, he'd seen it through all the way. But she said nothing. Her mind seized on the fact that Paul and Suzanne were going away. She'd be alone. She could get up—look for Bill herself—

She lay there, uncomplainingly, while Paul came in and asked how she felt. She nodded when he said,
"You must stay in bed, Martha.
The doctor says you must." Reluctantly, he left with Suzanne.
She waited until she heard the car start off. Then she got out of bed resolutely.

A cab took her to the garage where she had left Peg, after she drove Butch out to the farm.
Standing there in the garage, waiting for the man to get the dilapidated old car out from behind the truck that hedged it in, Martha thought suddenly, "The farm!
Butch! If Bill were anywhere in town—if he was upset, didn't know where to go—he'd think of Butch!"
Her lips began to quiver. Of course!

"Bill loves Butch even more than I do!" In a great shining blaze of certainty, she drove out of town to the farm. She ran from the car straight through the path to the runway in the back of the house.

"Butch!" she called tremulously.
"Butch!"

Then, rounding the corner of the house, Martha stopped short. For Butch was barking, jumping excitedly at the feet of a tall man in olive drab.

"Bill!" she screamed. "Oh, Bill,
we've looked everywhere for you!"

WE, THE WOMEN

"Professional Mother" Heads the Sisterhood of First-Class
Bored

By RUTH MILLETT

Motherhood is her career—and she doesn't let you forget it for a moment.
She belongs to that self-conscious sisterhood—the "professional mothers"
of America.

She doesn't bor eyou the way the old-fashioned Doting Mama used to.
No, she has her own method.
Her children aren't just normal human beings. They are "interesting problems," which she goes about solving with a career woman's glint in her eye.

A "Tolerant, Amused Attitude"

When she gets you aside it isn't to tell you the cute thing Billy said just as he dropped off to sleep last night. It is to tell you about Billy's latest complex, and the superior way she is handling it. She is proud of the fact that she doesn't go in for the "my darling" chatter
of the old-fashioned Doting Mama—
but takes a scientific, tolerant, amused attitude toward her children.

She looks straight down her nose
at the childish woman—marking her off as a selfish no-good—though you suspect she had her own children
to satisfy a craving to feel superior and important.

It should be satisfied. For she never loses an opportunity to trot out her children, like case histories, showing just how much intelligence and knowledge can accomplish in the rearing of small fry.

Making a Career of Motherhood

She isn't a mother at all, in the old-fashioned meaning of the word, but a career woman who has made a career of motherhood.

She gets the same kick out of overcoming—and then talking about—Billy's determination not to eat his spinach that the career woman gets

Builders of Brain Power

Don't Use 'Hothouse Forcing' on Your Children; Let Them Be Ready
to Learn

Fifth of a series of articles on scientists who study minds and the improvement of mental action.

By DONALD A. LAIRD,
PH. D. SCI. D.
Author of "How to Improve Your Brain Power"

Florists can "force" flowers to bloom
earlier than usual by applying heat, sunlight, water, and special foods
in the right ways. This is known as hothouse forcing, and flowers that are so forced may not keep their beauty long.

Many parents, and some educators,
have tried to get children to bloom prematurely by making special efforts to get them to talk, walk, read, or do something else at an earlier age than is customary. This has been called hothouse forcing of children.

This sort of forcing of humans is largely wasted effort, says Dr. Arnold Gesell. In addition, he finds indications that it may be injurious
in the long run.

Dr. Gesell has made numerous carefully controlled, experiments which show that special training is not of much use until the child has reached the stage in its development when it is "in readiness" to walk or talk or read or write.

There is a natural unfolding of readiness to learn various things in every child as he grows. The child's leg muscles are strong enough for walking, for example, long before he starts to walk. He will not be able to walk until special nerve centers in the spinal cord have naturally developed to the point that they can control the muscles which have been strong enough for some time.

Apparently there are no exercises,
no encouragement, coaxing or worry that parents may use to speed up the natural growth of these nerve centers which govern the readiness for walking. It is much the same with most things the child has to learn as it is growing up.

Some children are ready for various phases of their development earlier than others. Dr. Gesell has found. Reading can be wisely started by some when they are only 5, and by others not until they are 7 or 8.

Dr. Gesell has devoted his life to studying growing young children to provide systematic basic information about the growth and readiness of children up to the time they start school. Dr. Gesell's important work now centers in the Clinic of Child Development at Yale University, New Haven, Connecticut. There he has a score of rooms for his observations and experiments.

The rooms are extremely homelike, decorated and furnished especially to please the children. The place is literally honeycombed with scientific apparatus, much of which Dr. Gesell himself has developed but this is carefully hidden behind false walls so the children may be as natural and
"at home" as possible.

A number of the rooms have "one-way" screens which enable scientists —and parents, too—to observe the children, and at the same time remain unseen. Motion pictures can also be taken of the children when they are unaware of anything except that they are enjoying themselves.

Intelligence testings show only one part of the child's development. Dr.
Gesell finds, and he believes that intelligence has been emphasized too much recently, at the expense of other aspects of readiness.

Forty members responded to the roll call and the town represented were Hope, McCaskill, Blevins, Putnam, Ozon, and Washington.

It was announced that the council should have a project and since the P. T. A. congress has not provided a suitable one, it was suggested by Mrs. H. O. Kyler of Hope that the project be to appoint a committee to work on the project. She appointed Mrs. Bernard O'Dwyer, chairman, Mrs. Henry, Mrs. Osbourn, Mrs. Baber, and Mrs. Powers.

Kidnaper Gets Seven Years

Sentence Is Pronounced by Judge Harry Lemley

TEXARKANA — Jesse William Miller, 42-year-old ex-convict, was sentenced by Judge Harry J. Lemley in Arkansas federal court Thursday morning to serve seven years in the penitentiary for the kidnaping of Mrs. Dorothy Crawford Garner, his 18-year-old step-daughter.

In pronouncing sentence, Judge Lemley pointed out to Miller that he is a "brutal man" with a record of two terms in the Arkansas penitentiary and was "not suitable" to raise his six-year-old son, Jesse William Miller, Jr.

Miller was convicted by a jury Monday afternoon after a trial that lasted more than a week. His wife, Mrs. Artilla Miller, charged with him of committing the crime, was freed on an instructed verdict of not guilty. Mrs. Miller is the mother of the prosecuting witness.

While Judge Lemley spoke at length regarding the case, and before pronouncement of sentence, Miller showed increasing strain as the blood left his face, giving him a gaunt, ghastly look. After sentence was pronounced, Miller said that he would seek an appeal.

Judge Lemley pointed out that it was "rather difficult to pronounce sentence" because evidence was none too strong to link Miller with the kidnaping, but declared that "he certainly is guilty of perjury."

Miller was charged with inveigling Mrs. Garner from her farm home near DeQueen, Ark., and taking her to Texas on the pretext that her grandfather, J. H. Crawford, was gravely ill at his home at Trenton, Texas.

HIGHLIGHTS FROM LATEST BOOKS

Chinese Build Roads for Peace As Bombs Fall

If you remember Eileen Bigland's entertaining "Laughing Odyssey," you have some idea of the sort of travel book you may expect in her latest, "Into China" (Macmillan: $3). This is a story, colorful, fast-moving, of her perilous trip over the Yunnan-Burma highway into the heart of the war zone, including Chungking itself. Just a jot of her graphic writing, from her chapter on Chungking, "The City of Desolation," is excerpted here:

Much fine work has been done, and still is being done by the all-powerful in China. But there seemed to be an immense amount of wasted activity going on in and around Chungking. "We must show you our roads," they said rudely, and drove me at breakneck speed along boulevard after boulevard, circling the city.

"But why build all these fine roads when your city is bombed almost daily and is half in ruins already?"

"Ah, but when peace comes we shall build a fine new city round the roads."

Carts before horses once more.

On every hand, coolies were busy demolishing half-ruined houses by the simple expedient of tying ropes round the main bamboo struts and pulling on them. Down the street tripped a party of young girls dressed in European frocks and carrying tennis rackets under their arms. I said: "That is rather admirable. In the middle of constant raids they still play tennis."

"They showed me over a military hospital, and over government buildings, and over colleges where earnest Chinese sat in serried ranks, studying. Certainly, it was wonderful what educational progress was being made on all sides, but always I was lured back to the city itself with its hundreds of thousands of starving, wounded, homeless inhabitants. They seemed to count so much more than a handful of boys and girls mugging up mathematics."

The Franciscan monks own the garden of Gethsemane.

This week, a compromise has been reached regarding a distribution of the $430,000 sanatorium building fund surplus between old age pension and school forces.

Governor Adkins had no comment regarding plans for the University of Arkansas, other than to repeat at a press conference that "I'm going to have myself removed from the Board of Trustees."

MIND YOUR MANNERS

T. M. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.

Test your knowledge of correct social usage by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Should a high school girl comb her hair at the table in the school cafeteria?

2. Is it good manners for guests at a large banquet to leave the table before every speaker has finished?

3. Should a girl wear a dinner dress or a low-cut, sleeveless evening dress to a formal dinner?

4. Should a young man consider the color of dress a girl will wear when he selects a corsage for her?

5. How far ahead should a chapman be asked to a dance?

What would you do if—
You are a high school girl dressing for an informal dance in the evening—
(a) Wear a sweater and skirt with socks and saddle oxfords?
(b) Wear an afternoon-type dress, shoes with heels, and silk stockings?

Answers
1. No. That is just as bad manners as it would be for her to comb her hair at a downtown restaurant table.

2. No. It is very rude.

3. A dinner dress is suitable.

4. Yes.

5. When the dance is planned or a little later. It is rude to wait until the last minute to ask a chapman.

Best "What Would You Do?" solution—(b). High school students are old enough to dress appropriately for every occasion.

"Air Wells"

Already successfully used in southern France, air wells operate on a principle the same as that of an ice-filled pitcher, on which water condenses. At night, cold air enters the dome of the "air well" through a central pipe and circulates through the interior core, chilling it through by morning. As the outside air warms up, it enters and deposits moisture, which drains into tanks.

The only kind of strike we want to see is striking while the iron is hot.

F.H.A. Film Deals With Home Building

All-Technicolor Film Deals With Home Construction, Finance

"Design for Happiness," the story of a young couple with a small income and big dreams of home ownership, is the all-technicolor short spicing the bill at Saenger theater Sunday and Monday.

This is described as a new "documentary" film of the more-truth-

Super Comedy Here Sunday

Clark Gable, Hedy Lamarr Starred in 'Comrade X'

The old adage that "actions speak louder than words," once more was proven by the use of Russian dialogue in "Comrade X," new comedy starring Clark Gable and Hedy Lamarr, opening Sunday at the Saenger theater for an engagement of two days.

Gable plays a daredevil American newspaperman, and Miss Lamarr a Moscow lady street car "motorman" in the hilarious story, which required some Russian speeches for flavor.

But although there were eighty-one lines of Russian dialogue in the script, ranging from many "one-word utterances" to a 250-word speech, writers Ben Hecht and Charles Lederer found occasion to have only fifteen lines of them translated for Gable, so that the audience would know what was being said.

Others Thrown in

All the others were merely thrown in as Russian, with the actors indicating through gestures, mood and pantomime the meaning of what they were saying.

The translation of the English-written "Russian" lines in the script was done by Andrey Tolstoy, technical adviser and great-grandnephew of the famous Russian novelist, Leo Tolstoy. He put the eighty-one "lines" into Russian, performing a task which was far from simply substituting Russian for English words. He was required to use synonymy and altered phrases in which the non-Russian actors could speak correctly, since Russian contains many sounds strange to other nationalities.

"I had to avoid certain Russian phonetics which would have been stumbling blocks for the actors," he said. "They were playing native Russians, hence they had to speak perfect Russian. It was no easy task."

Easily Understood

Tolstoy was impressed by the fact that his Russian lines could be understood by everyone, regardless of whether or not they knew the language. All such dialogue was accompanied by situations and gestures which made the action translate the words. Thus it was easy to know, by such actions, when a character said than-fiction type that many audiences are now greeting with applause.

Young Bob Martin and his wife and the baby and the dog are the "case history" examined by "Design for Happiness." On a $25 a week income, they dream of owning a modern small home of their own. Bob has serious doubts that it can be done. But Nancy, having learned about the F.H.A. Plan of paying for a small home at the rate of less than a dollar a day, sets out to prove her point.

The young couple's adventure in home ownership is the entertaining background to a series of colorful shots of a modern small home in the course of construction. The film offers substantial proof that home ownership on a modest income is possible on the F.H.A. Plan.

Narrated by Lowell Thomas, the short is presented by the Federal Housing Administration.

Active Year in Home Building

FHA Administrator Cites Reasons for Forecast

New residential construction in the United States during 1941 is likely to continue at the highest levels since 1928, Federal Housing Administrator Abner H. Ferguson declared.

In view of the upward trend of employment and purchasing power throughout the country and the existence of ample credit supplies on favorable terms, Mr. Ferguson said, the probabilities are that the American home building industry during the coming year will at least maintain the pace reached in 1940 when approximately 545,000 new dwelling units were built, according to an estimate of the Bureau of Labor Statistics.

The output of new housing accommodations in 1940 set a 12-year high record and compared with 465,000 dwellings units in 1939 and 509,000 in 1920. Thus, more than a million dwelling units were produced in 1939 and 1940.

The important contribution of the FHA-insured mortgage program to this sharp revival in home construction is demonstrated by the steadily broadening proportion of home building that is being financed by FHA-insured loans, the Administrator said.

In 1940, approximately 180,000 new small homes were completed or started under FHA inspection as compared with 142,000 in 1939. The gain of about 27 per cent over 1939 in new home construction under the FHA program compared with the increase of 17 per cent in total construction of new dwelling units.

Well over 40 per cent of the new single-family homes built in 1940, representing the FHA's primary field of operations, were financed by FHA-insured loans. In many important industrial areas, upward of 50 per cent of the new single-family homes are being financed through the facilities of the FHA, with additional amounts being an outgrowth of the FHA's activities.

Favorable Conditions

While basic conditions appear favorable for sustained peak activity in new home building, the pace of operations in 1941 also will be influenced by developments arising in connection with the national defense program, Mr. Ferguson declared. The which seemed to invite misunderstanding?

Is it not that Jesus used an extreme story to emphasize His plain and uncompromising teaching concerning the true worth and values in life? According to Him there were two courses that man could pursue in life, and he had to make the decision between them. He could choose to live for earthly and material things, putting all his effort toward things that inevitably perish, or he could choose to live for something higher, discovering the treasure in olive and kindness, and in all the spiritual and imperishable riches.

Now Jesus saw men putting all their strength and ingenuity into the worldly quest, while those who professed to be religiously seeking the better things were too often weak and ineffective. What He was constantly insisting upon was that if men wished to get all that there was for them of heavenly things, they must seek these things with the same ambition, drive, and strategy with which men sought to gain material ends and advantage.

The unjust steward, in the way he went after what he wanted, set an example for just men who were self-intentioned but weak and ineffective. That is why Jesus chose an extreme story to challenge His hearers to decisiveness. If you are going to serve God, you must serve Him with as complete a devotion as other men serve Mammon.

possibility therefore must be recognized, he said, that emergency defense construction needs, such as army barracks and cantonments, may produce temporary stringencies in supplies of building materials and labor.

The Administrator expressed confidence, however, that for 1941 as a whole the facilities of the building industry will prove ample to meet all present requirements of the defense program without impeding new home construction.

Moreover, the new housing demands arising in key industrial areas where defense industries are rapidly expanding their employment will create important new outlets for profitable investment of private funds in new home construction, Mr. Ferguson said.

Already this movement is reaching impressive proportions. During the closing months of 1940, new homes started under FHA inspection in important defense industry regions showed increases of more than 50 per cent over the like 1939 period, with gains in individual areas ranging as high as 155 per cent. Another promising use of private funds in these localities is the modernization of old houses or the conversion of large single-family houses into multi-family dwellings through property improvement loans insured by the FHA.
